But the road is houseless, and leads not to school,
To see a child is rare there, and the eye
Has but the road, the wood that overhangs
And underyawns it, and the path that looks
As if it led on to some legendary
Or fancied place where men have wished to go
And stay; till, sudden, it ends where the woods ends.

DESTINY

We find ourselves drifting
Into open space
Out into a desolate and empty world.
Where no one but we may enter.

There is nothing here
But emptiness and peace,
And our minds are asleep.

Our eyes are open and yet we see nothing.
We feel only peace and serenity.
We do not know our destiny.
But we feel we are near.

We possess no visible body.
Yet we exist.
We ask ourselves. "will we go on forever?"
But we receive no answer.

STUDENT POETRY

ASSASSINATION

Cross-hair on a tinted scope,
Gloved finger on a hair-trigger,
Steady arms on a polished stock,
A cold eye on the static target.

Man's face on many plaque cards,
Fine words on colored posters,
Strong voice on tuned speakers,
Crowd cheering at last words.

The finger moves, the cross-hair
jerks,
And down he plummets from his platform,
Blood gushing, face contorting
from the pain,
To the screaming crowd below.

-- Dale Stamm

HANGING-ON

Today I felt the butterflies,
And yesterday, it was your range.
My mind is hazed,
With fears and ways,
That you might leave me.

I looked into the sky above,
And all I saw was sky.
The beauty of a bird adrift
Was murdered by my fear.
And all I see,
Are memories,
And visions when I was alone.

Hanging-on, holding to,
A leech of sorts,
I'm coming to.
I need you
Like an addict needs a hit.

-- Judy Wosinski

DECISIONS

Tense, frantic ideas
Skitter and slide
Around and across
Rebounding
From temple to temple.

Old dreams and desires
Wage a vigorous war
With practicalities.
Longings are locked
In deadly battle
With common sense.

The girl, vulnerable, yearning.
Eyes wide, erect,
Defies the reason and
Cool logic
Of the woman.

The woman, used and spent,
Needs ungratified,
Bows to the girl.
With nervous hope and
Trembling anticipation
Makes her decision.

Clear, calm thoughts
Smoothly flowing
Through the patterned
Channels
Of a mind in Equilibrium.

--Irene Greenwood

18TH CENTURY GIRL.

Tell me why my winds all whine,
And why my brooks all babble.
A herd of cows becomes of kine,
And crowds translate to rabble.

Instead of think I often muse
When in a meditative mood.
I often call a trick, a ruse;
But naked truth does not mean nude!

My stormy skies all tend to lower,
My summer skies to smile;
A stand of pines must always glower;
My flowers are free from guile.

Me thinks I am a poor lost soul
Misplaced in history's span,
I should be living out my role
In an earlier age of man.

-- Irene Greenwood

BULLETS

"Bullets are high speed projectiles which are fired from some form of fire arm. Since the development of gun powder about three hundred years ago several types of bullets and fire arms have been developed. Of course, the value of bullets cannot be calculated."

Both, father and son, stood together in a clearing in the trees, admiring the boy's new rifle - a birthday gift from his father. The boy was excited and could hardly wait to learn how to shoot it.

The motorcade moved slowly down the street, between the gigantic skyscrapers of the city. People lined the streets deep, shouting and waving flags as the automobiles slowly passed by.

"The President is approaching now. We can hear the drums about a block away and of course the police sirens, but, I don't know if you can hear them or not for all the cheering. What a tremendous ovation for the President just thousands and thousands are out to see him. I'll be reporting again right after this word from Radio CDJF."

From high in the building he could see the cars easily. He would have to hurry or he might be too late.

"Remember son, this present is not a toy. It's nothing to be fooled around with, like they do in the movies. Even if it is only a .22, it's still a dangerous weapon."

"Slow steady now, Easy! Keep your arm loose. Hold the rifle steady. Breath Deep. Easy. . ."

A squirrel ran up the side of the tree at their approach - then stopped, obviously frightened, yet still curious enough to watch them. The father spotted him first and pointed in its direction. Calmly the boy lifted his rifle to his shoulder and placed the bead on the small animal.

"Easy. Hold the hairline on his forehead. Steady, Steady! Breathe deep. Breathe. . ."

"Ball bullets are the type used in most army guns and hunting rifles. Tracer bullets leave a trail of fire behind the. Tracers are usually used in fighter planes. Dum Dum bullets have their jackets stripped back from the point to uncover the lead core. This makes them more harmful because the soft lead point spreads when it strikes. Such bullets are used in hunting large animals. International law forbids their military use."

"Oh, my God!"
"Good shot, son!
Something wrong has happened.
Bullets kill."

Excerpt from "Lines on a Young Lady's Photograph Album" by Philip Larkin

In short, a past that no one now can share,
No matter whose your future; calm and dry,
It holds you like a heaven, and you lie
Unvariably lovely there,
Smaller and clearer as the years go by.
